Instead, it uses the user's computer to calculate and carry out changes This means a user does not wait for text and data to complete time-consuming round trips to and from a server before seeing the results.. It does not reload the document, load a new document, or require a distant server to generate new content.. Furthermore, DHTML does not require additional support from applications or embedded controls to make changes.. With DHTML, you can easily add effects to your pages that previously were difficult to achieve.. Not only does DHTML enhance the user's perception of your documents, it also improves server performance by reducing requests to the server.
